“AGC OF WASHINGTON has created and supported a program where future leaders of the construction industry can learn from the industry’s past and about its quickly-evolving future. My experience with FLF has been indispensable in accessing and understanding the current construction landscape and all of its opportunities.”

FLF FUTURE LEADERSHIP FORUM

Professional development for up and coming leaders in the construction industry of Washington

Investing in the Future

The Washington state construction industry has built its success on a foundation of strong leaders and experienced professionals. With a commitment to the industry's continued success, the AGC is investing in our future leaders by preparing them for the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead.

Future Leadership Forum Program

The Future Leadership Forum (FLF) is a program of the AGC of Washington focused on the professional development of the next generation of construction industry leaders. Through educational and networking events, the program offers young professionals of AGC member companies opportunities to:

- Build relationships with industry peers
- Develop leadership skills
- Learn from experienced industry leaders
- Give back to the community

Participation

FLF participation is open to professionals under 40 and who work for AGC member companies. Participants include company presidents, vice presidents, project managers, field personnel, accounting and office staff, project engineers and project administrators.

FLF activities are designed to enhance participants knowledge of the local marketplace, the construction industry, the AGC and each individual's potential as a leader.

Activities

FLF program activities are designed to enhance participants knowledge of the local construction industry, the role of the AGC organization, and their own leadership potential. Our FLF education programs have included:

- Risk Management
- BIM Technology
- Labor Issues

All AGC of Washington classes and events are also open to FLF participants.

In addition, FLF offers social gatherings where participants can meet industry peers and experienced leaders in a variety of settings including informal dinners and sporting events.

Get Involved

The FLF steering committee invites you to get involved:

- Register for FLF lectures and workshops
- Attend FLF social events
- Join a FLF committee
- Attend AGC sponsored events
