

Herbert H. Gray, III, received his A.B. degree in 1975 from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, then went on to Emory University Law School where he earned his J.D. in 1978. He began his practice in Atlanta at that time, and joined Ragsdale, Beals, Seigler, Patterson & Gray, LLP in 1999.

Hal's construction practice involves advising and representing clients in all phases of construction and regarding all types of projects, including commercial high-rise office buildings, hospitals, regional malls and shopping centers, heavy and highway construction, bridge construction, federal government construction and contracting, mass transit construction, condominiums, apartments and dormitories, hotels, industrial and manufacturing plants, fuel storage facilities, Atlanta Olympic Stadium/Turner Field, Atlanta Olympic/Georgia Tech Village, Hartsfield-Jackson International Airport and the Georgia World Congress Center. He regularly represents design professionals, general contractors, program and construction managers, subcontractors, suppliers, materialmen and sureties.

Hal is a member of the Mediation Panel and the Commercial, Construction and Large and Complex Case Panels of Arbitrators for the American Arbitration Association, the State Bar of Georgia and the Atlanta and American Bar Associations. He is a registered mediator with the Georgia Office of Dispute Resolution. He is also a member of the Atlanta Lawyers Club and served as its President from 1991 to 1992 and as a Trustee of the Atlanta Lawyers Foundation from 1993 to 2000. Hal is the author of several chapters in Georgia Jurisprudence, published by Lawyers Co-op Publishing, and numerous works on construction topics. He often lectures both legal and industry groups on construction and alternative dispute resolution matters of interest.

His practice areas include construction law and litigation, alternative dispute resolution, both mediation and arbitration, and real estate law and litigation.

Born in Chattanooga, Hal was raised primarily in Atlanta. He and wife Mayme have three children in college. When not writing checks for college tuitions, room and board, they are enjoying once again picking up golf. They reside in the north Fulton County suburb of Roswell.
